

The art of well-being

In the sharing of cultural traditions or a joke, and through planning art activities or gallery outings, this program develops strong bonds of friendship and well-being.

Putting your care first

Creative Connections Program

About Creative Connections

The Creative Connections program is a weekly art class that brings people together to share a meal and create a variety of artworks. Community Care TASMANIA (CCT) established the program in 2010 to help reduce social isolation experienced by some of its clients while learning new skills and improving their sense of wellness.

CCT employs a coordinator and an assistant who assist participants to create artworks in a range of media, including painting, beading and screen printing.

Works produced by the group have been exhibited in community settings, such as at the ARTrium Gallery at the Launceston General Hospital, as well entered at the Royal Launceston Show. A calendar featuring members paintings is produced annually, which are sold or given as gifts.

Creative Connection participants meet every Tuesday between 10.30 and 2.30 at the Studio, Inveresk Museum, Launceston.

Cost: There is a small weekly fee for the 4 hour art class to help cover costs associated with running the program, such as venue hire, staffing and materials. The fee is negotiated with each participant and based on the individual's funding programs.

Being creative together lets you

- learn new skills
- create beautiful and interesting art works
- make new friends
- share a laugh and a meal with others
